

VINCENT WHO?

A documentary about a community
behind one man's case

SPRING 2012 SOCIAL JUSTICE FILM SERIES

About the film: In 1982, at the height of anti-Japanese sentiments arising from massive layoffs in the auto industry, a Chinese-American named Vincent Chin was murdered in Detroit by two white autoworkers. Chin's killers, however, got off with a $3,000 fine and 3 years probation, but no jail time. Outraged, this awakened a people and ignited the Asian American civil rights movement. Exploring the legacy of the Vincent Chin case, this powerful film asks how far Asian Americans have come since then and how far they have yet to go.
